The laundry room gets a major upgrade with wow-factor designs and modern enhancements.

Why not make the cycle of washing, drying and folding a little more fun with a playful and bright space? Designers are turning to punchy patterns, elegant fixtures and soothing colors to create pretty and functional laundry rooms, like this one shown here designed by Sheila Mayden and architect Nazim Nice for a young couple in Seattle, Washington. Set against a lively backdrop, the idea of housework seems a lot less like work and a lot more like a welcome escape. On the following pages, we make the case for turning your laundry room into a space you won't want to leave.
